

Regulatory Buoys

Besides providing navigational directions and information to boaters, buoys and markers identify dangerous or restricted areas. In Canada, you'll encounter two types of marking systems: regulatory markers and lateral markers.

Regulatory Buoys & Markers that tell boaters how to behave and are enforced by law.

Lateral markers are special channel buoys that indicate “safe” water areas by defining the lateral systems of navigation for inland waterways.