

Extruded Fender

Extruded Fenders are used for smaller vessels and lighter applications. They are usually bolted to the structure, either through the top or sides of the fender. Available in various sections including D and square, they can be supplied in almost any length then cut and drilled as needed.